The Trained Operator and Focused Intent

While the five functions of the radionic instrument accurately summarize the basic engineering behind a reputable device, it is not possible to overstate the importance of the role of the trained operator.

Remember that the even the finest Stradivarius violin remains an inert hunk of wood and string until it is taken up and played by a skilled musician. Likewise, the radionic instrument requires the guidance of the trained operator to shape the questions during the analysis, to douse for information and broadcast times, and to make choices that will drive the research toward the desired outcomes.

At the heart of this effort is the focused intent, wherein the human mind acts as the focusing lens for the universal living energy that defines our physical reality. It is the mind of the operator that has the ability to provide and integrate information with this energy – the radionic instrument merely serves as the mind-matter interface.

There are many example of the limitless power of focused intent that extend far beyond the esoteric world of radionics. Anyone who has seen the power of prayer or the impact of positive thinking has seen focused intent in action, applied through the same mechanism that the ancient Kabbalah¹ describes as the birth of physical reality from “limitless divine energy”.

This mystical idea is completely supported by the observations of Colonel Tom Bearden, one of the world’s premiere free energy physicists. He has described the physical process by which the mass of the atomic nucleus can be charged up with a dynamically structured biopotential – a process he calls “kindling”.² It is through this process that a thought that is defined within the mind may be transformed into a tangible object. Such is the process by which the trained operator employs the radionic instrument to pre-engineer physical reality by tapping into the boundless gulf of universal energy at the null point before linear time and physical space exist.

While the focused intent of the trained operator plays a pivotal role in the successful use of a radionic instrument, it is essential that the processes of amplification and broadcast of the scalar signal take place independently of the actions of the operator. This is in contrast to the “wish boxes” and diagrammatic (paper) radionic devices that are in circulation, which act only as tools for focusing intent while relying on the operator to serve as the conduit for the energy that is necessary to bring about tangible changes in the energetic state of the subject. Very few individuals have either the training or discipline required to safely maintain a continuous state of focused intent and energy transfer. For the layman to do so is to risk burnout, premature aging and worse. In contrast, a reputable radionic instrument does the work of scalar energy transmission, allowing the researcher to disengage from the process with no personal energy required.
